Portfolio Update

The portfolio delivered a return of 0.60% during the month, compared with the S&P/ASX 100 Accumulation Index (ASX 100) return of 0.96%. The rise in the ASX 100 was mainly driven by the Information Technology and Utilities sectors, up by 4.5% and 3.4% respectively. However, the fall in the Telecommunications sector (-2.8%) partially dampened these gains.

Australian inflation unexpectedly rose to 3.6% in May, pushing back hopes of interest rate cuts and potentially leading to a hike. The relatively flat performance of the Australian share market consisted of large companies performing better than smaller ones. While US inflation remained steady at 2.7%, Australia's higher inflation suggests a slower economic slowdown and potential policy changes.

At the portfolio level, AGL Energy (AGL), Xero (XRO) and Fisher and Paykel Healthcare Corporation (FPH) were notable positive contributors. AGL continued to perform well as investors are recognising the persistence of high electricity prices as coal is replaced by renewable power generation. XRO and FPH reported their FY24 results, which were well received by the market. XRO delivered stronger-than-expected profits and continues to show discipline in managing growth and improving profitability. FPH's focus on new products and margin recovery bodes well for future earnings.

Weighing on performance were the underweight position in Commonwealth Bank of Australia (CBA), and the overweight positions in Block (SQ2) and Seek (SEK). CBA rallied despite lacking any new developments, pushing its valuation to an all-time high. It is currently the priciest bank globally and relative to its own history. SQ2 reported its 1Q2024 results which showed a good balance between growth and profitability. Despite exceeding profit expectations for six straight quarters, it trades at a record low valuation. SEK remains the IT sector laggard as job ads stay uninspiring. Market expectations are extremely low, reflected in its historically cheap valuation (only surpassed during the Global Financial Crisis).

The recent market volatility presented opportunities. Amcor (AMC) is a new addition to the portfolio. 2023 was a rough year for AMC as destocking by customers impacted volumes. However, recent management comments suggest this trend is nearing its end. The stock appears extremely undervalued, given its depressed PE multiple on trough earnings.

The market presents a mixed picture, with pockets of extreme overvaluation like CBA and Wesfarmers (WES). By avoiding these areas and focusing on undervalued stocks like AMC and AGL, the portfolio is well-positioned for sustainable returns.
